

HEADMASTER'S WEEKLY NEWSLETTER

Dear Parents

You will be delighted to know, and will undoubtedly have heard and seen first-hand from your own children, just how busy Town Close has been over the course of the last week and indeed the term.

It has always been a strong desire and aim of the School to enable all children to have experiences that are not just positive in nature, but allow them to try something new, learn a new skill or see something for the first time.

Pushing ourselves beyond our comfort zones is something we encourage as it builds resilience, self-esteem, confidence and self-belief and allows us to discover passions, talents and interests that may well last a lifetime.

This last week I have seen children discovering new topics in their lessons including learning Mandarin from scratch, taking part in photoshoots, voting for their favourite books for the Royal Society book review and taking part in the “welly wanging” competition.

In addition, pupils have been building campfires and cooking smores in ASA, representing the school in matches against other schools and preparing for upcoming assemblies and presentations.

While there have been many individual highlights, I did want to say what a joy it was to have our first musician during assembly, many thanks to Tessa M for regaling us all with her piece on the piano, summing up the spirit and positive approach that I have seen in abundance around the school.

Whatever the weekend may bring, be it a children’s party, celebrating Harvest Festival, visiting friends or simply taking some time out from a busy schedule, I hope you have a wonderful two days.

With very best wishes
