

HEADMASTER'S WEEKLY NEWSLETTER

Dear Parents,

It has been wonderful to see so many of you this last week, supporting your children across a myriad of events.

The Year 6 play was a superb prelude to the week, with two performances at the tail end of last week that were of the highest order. The level of acting, given the age of the children, was very impressive, with the story of 'The Witches' by Roald Dahl brought to life.

This week saw the remaining Pre Prep sports days on the front lawn, with the children clearly enjoying the day competing against their friends and performing in front of their family. The children have been talking about it a great deal over the course of the week.

The Prep department Summer Fete was an enormous success, not only in engaging the children to create stalls that were a huge amount of fun, but in raising money for the school charity, The Jenny Lind Children's Hospital.

Later the same day, many of us were treated to an evening of music courtesy of the Brian Read Summer Concert, where various ensembles, orchestras and choirs thrilled us with their pieces. I am delighted to say that some of these groups will also be performing on Prize Day.

It was great to experience the Royal Norfolk Show and thank you to everyone who joined us at our stall for a refreshing drink, bite to eat or chat over the two days. It was lovely to be back at the show and meeting all those with connections to the school.

Today saw the Prep department celebrating their sports day, with both individual success and the house competition at the forefront of the day. The engagement of the children and the support of their friends, especially those in their house, was a delight to see and brought to a close a busy but hugely enjoyable week for all.

With best wishes
