

HEADMASTER'S WEEKLY NEWSLETTER

Dear Parents

The last week saw us formally move in to spring time following the equinox that took place on Monday evening. This formed part of the assembly for the Prep children this week, as did explaining the changing of the clocks on Sunday morning, so that we can all continue to make the best use of the daylight hours.

Monday morning was an early start for some of the children (and their parents) as Year 6 set off on their humanities trip to France, where they would be taking in many sites around the North coast, including the Normandy beaches. We have been able to follow their progress on twitter and it seems that they have had a wonderful trip. I have no doubt that the children will be full of stories, such is the magic of residential trips.

Throughout the week our musicians have been busy at the Norfolk County Music Festival, across a number of categories. Our soloists have performed very well indeed, with many getting significant recognition for their performances, while our Senior Choir, Orchestra and Year 2 Choir were all highly commended for their performances. It has been really exciting to be able to support such an event and thank you to those within the parental body who have been able to attend the various events, it is always greatly appreciated.

Earlier this week, we had the final Year 1 class assembly from Willow class, which was hugely engaging to watch, especially given the increased audience participation that it involved.

The last word for this week must go to the cast of the Lion King. I am aware that we are only half way through the parental performances, but last night was a joy to behold, with members of Year 7 and 8 putting on a riveting performance. The acting and singing was first class, as was the timing of the comedic moments, adding a wonderful layer of colour to the evening. Those of us in attendance felt privileged to be in the Read Hall on an otherwise dreary Thursday evening.

With best wishes
